Wet N Wild Bebot Love Yes indeed it is the perfect Bebot love and it's the price of these wet n wild lippies that forces me to call them the perfect dupes for Mac- Just $3.. And what's even better, I've found look alikes for the most popular shades: there are the MAC Ruby Woo dupes, MAC Velvet Teddy dupes, MAC Whirl dupes, MAC Mehr dupes, MAC Twig dupes, MAC Angel dupes, MAC Candy Yum Yum dupes, MAC Snob dupes, MAC Russian Red dupes, MAC Diva dupes, Lady Danger dupes..... If I talk about the color all I can say is you can never tell the two apart Mac matte lipstick "velvet teddy" One of the most popular yet so unique, this light brown shades with slight red undertones is the nude everyone has in their wish list.. It's the perfect nude shade with enough brown tone and not too pinky (for some reason every time I purchase any kind of lipstick, it has too much pink going on for me).. I made a note in my head and popped to Boots one lunchtime with Kerri-Ann (the payday draw to buy new makeup was too strong).. I also loved that it was only £6 in comparison to the circa £15 I was paying for my MAC Velvet teddy!So, I'm guessing you want to see a comparison?This is the MAC Matte Velvet Teddy (I know they test on animals, but please don't tell me this shade isn't fabulous AF?!)And this was the NYX Matte cream in Scandanavia;So was it long wearing? Yes – stayed on the same as my MAC Velvet teddy right up to lunchtime when I chomped down on my chicken wrapDid it dry out and crack on my lips? No, I was really impressed by how hydrating this was and velvety smooth it was to apply!Am I going to keep on using it? Hell yes! At £6 a pop, I'm more than happy to continue using it!Let me know if you've got any recommendations for dupes that I should try!
